ABOUT THE EVENT

During these unprecedented times, the international development community is faced with new challenges regarding risk management, employee protections, and legal obligations. Now more than ever, organizations are looking for the best ways to manage operations and create protected environments for staff that demonstrate duty of care. In the current state of the world, how can we best support staff and manage risk? During this event, our speakers will cover how development companies are handling duty of care responsibilities. Topics will include:

- Best practices in enterprise risk management
- Currency fluctuation and devaluation
- Understanding duty of care
- And much more!

Moderator
Abdallah Ahmed, CRIS, CLCS | Vice President, Global Organizations, Clements Worldwide

Abdallah Ahmed, CRIS, joined Clements Worldwide in 2016 working with international organizations to manage their exposures and protect their people and assets in high-risk markets. Mr. Abdallah has more than 10 years of experience working in the insurance industry. Mr. Abdallah has two insurance designations including Construction Risk Insurance Specialist and Commercial Lines Coverage Specialist. Abdallah spent much of his life living abroad in high risk countries, including Yemen, Sudan, Namibia, and China. He also holds a degree in Economics from Marymount University.

Speaker
Melly Preira | Human Resources Director, Jesuit Refugee Service

Melly Preira is Human Resources Director at the Jesuit Refugee Service. Her HR Department supports 56 countries in 10 regions and implements effective HR management practices, tailored to both field and HQ realities. Melly guides management on the development and promotion of strategic policies and projects to support the wellbeing and performance of their employees. Melly’s focus is on organisational wellbeing, consisting of organisational policies, specific self-care practices, and tailored health and psychosocial support services in response to a balanced equation between employee wellbeing, duty of care and organisational performance. Before serving JRS, Melly worked for international development organisations including FAO and IDLO. Melly holds a BA in Human Resources Management with a focus on social relations from the CNAM in France and a MSc in International Human Resources Management and Development from the University of Manchester, UK.

Speaker
Sean Truman | Chief Medical Officer and Cofounder, Truman Group

Sean Truman is a Clinical Psychologist and the Chief Medical Officer and cofounder of the Truman Group, a practice that provides remote mental health care to individuals living around the world. Sean grew up in Nairobi, attended college in the US, and received a Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology from the University of Connecticut.
